The Hare and the Tortoise

Once upon a time, there lived a hare in the deep dark forest. He was very agile and he was very proud of his speed. He considered himself the greatest runner. He had a habit of challenging other animals in the forest for a race and used to make fun of them when they lost the race.

One day the hare saw a tortoise moving very slowly amidst the jungle. The arrogant hare looked at the tortoise irritatingly and asked, "Where are you going, lazy fellow?". "I am going towards the grass field to grab some green grass for my food", replied the tortoise. The hare laughed and poked fun at the tortoise, "With this speed, you will reach the field by the autumn only and you will only get dry hay." Tortoise got irritated but he replied with calm, "I'll be able to reach the field by dawn if I don't give up and keep on moving. I move slowly and steadily but I always get to my food on time."

The hare thought of making fun of the tortoise. He said, "I don't think you will reach to the field before a month. If you are so sure of reaching the field on time, will you race with me to the green field?" The tortoise was hesitant but accepted the hare's challenge. The race began. The hare left the poor tortoise behind and became out of sight in the next moment. Soon, the hopping hare covered the halfway. He stopped for a moment, looked behind and murmured to himself, "That lazy tortoise will take hours to reach here. I should take some rest." He lay down under a tree for a quick nap but soon fell asleep. The hare kept on sleeping for hours. The tortoise continued to walk and crossed the hare. After a few more hours of sleep, the hare woke up. He realized that he was asleep for hours and tortoise had moved past him. He started running towards the field. When he reached the field, he saw that the tortoise had already won the race. The hare was really ashamed of his behavior. He apologized to the tortoise and said, "I am sorry. I now understand the importance of working continuously. Slow and steady wins the race."
